Archie Roosevelt Exposes Fraud in Dome Oil Leases

BULLETIN
[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
Washington.—Former Secretary Albert B. Fall has been subpoenaed by the senate public lands committee investigating the Teapot Dome oil lease to appear before it for further examination.
[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
Washington, D. C.—The sensation of the day is the testimony of Archie Roosevelt, a former officer of the Sinclair Oil company, who has resigned, before the committee on public lands, which Senator J. L. McPherson is chairman, last Monday.
For the first time the word "bribe" has been used in the testimony relating to the Teapot Dome oil leases and former Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Fall.
"It is an ugly word," was the reply of C. D. Wahlburg, private secretary to H. F. Sinclair, who resigned along with Mr. Roosevelt, to the question of the word. The testimony showed that $25,000 had been paid by the Sinclair interests to the foreman of the Fall ranch; that Liberty bonds and other securities, to the amount of many thousands of dollars, had been turned over to Colonel Zevely, Sinclair's secretary.
Archie Roosevelt blew off the lid when he testified. The committee has been endeavoring to locate the source of the $100,000 which Albert Fall had "borrowed" from Edward McLean and then returned to the American peace award campaign. His banker declared he did not have the definite information requested by the committee, but suggested that Curran and Mitchell might have it.

BUSINESS BLOCKS RAZED BY FLAMES

Spooner Suffers $50,000 Loss; Explosion of Stove Held Cause.
[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
Spooner.—Fire last night destroyed a half a block of business houses here with a loss estimated at $50,000, partially covered by insurance.
The fire was believed to have started from a stove explosion in the H. C. Young Electric shop repair shop. It spread to the L. C. Isabella's grocery store, the Midway garage and Ditch's food store.
Fire fighters were hampered by lack of water due to frozen water mains and the breaking of a pump at the power house, and their efforts to confine the blaze to the shop were futile. The heat caused an explosion of oil in the garage, which further spread the flames.
The Maurice O'Rourke home over the garage also was destroyed.
TO VISITING HOWLERS:
Leave orders for additional papers at the Gazette Circulation department. Full scores of all events.

Two Beloit Negroes Get 3 Years Each

Beloit.—Hughie Dickens, 22, and Ollie Davis, 15, negro bandits who robbed David Wilson, Beloit college student of 27 cents and later fired upon students who went to this aid on the night of Jan. 15, pleaded guilty to assault with a deadly weapon in Judge Clark's court here today.
Dickens was given a three-year sentence in the state reformatory at Green Bay. Davis was sentenced to serve a three-year sentence in the Waushara Industrial school.
The latter was arrested at Rockford, the day after the shooting.

LONG TERM WAGE AGREEMENT URGED BY MINERS' CHIEF

Indianapolis.—A wage agreement for a term of years, effectuated without a strike or suspension of production, would be of constructive help in restoring stability to the industry and would be a boon to the coal-mining public, John L. Lewis, international president of the United Mine Workers of America, declared in his report to the annual convention of the organization here today. The present wage agreement of the operators expires March 31.
"Were such an arrangement possible, it would demonstrate to the coal-consuming public that the industry itself was making a sincere attempt to place its house in order," President Lewis declared. "Such a policy, if carried out, would eliminate the necessity for coal legislation by the federal congress and the various state legislatures. I am not one of those who believe that the enactment of arbitrary legislation will prove to be a panacea for every malady of the coal industry, but that economic laws be set aside by the sweep of a legislative pen."
Held Progress Milestone
Reviewing briefly the bituminous strikes of 1922 and 1923, the international president declared the accomplishments of the miners' organization in the last two years and four months "mark a milestone in the record of trade union progress and constitutes an object lesson for all other workers to follow."
The president scored the United States coal commission, which he declared had expended $600,000 and lacked the wisdom to make practical recommendations for permanent reform within the industry.
Only Surface Ills
"The members of the commission," he charged, "have been contented to investigate the surface of the industry, while neglecting to prescribe for the malignant ailment which was eating at its vitals to the detriment of public interest," he added.

BOOK IN OFFER OF NEW PEACE PRIZE TO SENATE BODY

Washington.—An offer to duplicate his $100,000 prize to the author of any peace plan, selected by the senate select committee investigating the Teapot Dome oil lease to appear before it for further examination.

FITCH AND BAUMGARTNER PLEAD GUILTY BEFORE GRIMM.
THOM CONVICTED
Gambling Case Disposed of—Friday Set for Fixing Sentences.

While trained in legal subjects, Attorney Louis Avery professed decided ignorance on gambling cases. In a trial of Bruno Thom, charged with operating a gambling device in the Rock county circuit court, George Porter was called to testify by the state, a told of watching even shake dice in Thom's place and remarked that there were "nickels, dimes and quarters in the pot."
"What do you mean—the pot?" demanded Attorney Avery.
"The attorney also admitted he did not know what a "kitty" meant, other than a feline baby."

Two pleas of guilty were made and one conviction by jury was obtained in the Rock county circuit court Monday and Tuesday in criminal cases. Not guilty pleas were entered in a number of other state cases, and it is expected that the attention of the circuit court will be occupied during the balance of the week with prohibition cases taken to the circuit court on change of venue proceedings.
J. E. Fitch, Janesville, pleaded guilty to possession and on the recommendation of District Attorney S. C. Danville and Chief of Police Charles Newman, on other count in the charge was dismissed. Jay Baumgartner, former employee at one of the South Janesville resorts, also entered a plea of guilty to the charge of violation of evidence. Both defendants will be sentenced by Judge George Grimm on Friday, Jan. 25, after an investigation is made of their records by the court.
Thom Found Guilty
The case against Bruno Thom, charged with operation of a gambling device, was heard by the court and a 12-man jury on Monday and Tuesday. It was claimed Thom allowed a dice game for money in his soft drink establishment on Western avenue. The jury was given the case Tuesday morning and returned a verdict of not guilty on the first count of operating a gambling device and guilty on the second count of harboring the same. The case against Thom will be heard on Friday.

Moscow.—Nicolai Lenin, premier of soviet Russia, is dead. The end came at 5:50 p. m. Monday, but the death was not announced for some time afterward. It occurred at his country villa near Moscow, where he had been living in retirement. It came after a sudden turn for the worse, culminating in a stroke which paralyzed his respiratory organism. Announcement of the death was made by the all-Russian soviet this morning.
News Unexpected
Representatives of foreign diplomatic commissions, and others with whom the correspondent talked after the announcement, agreed in expressing the opinion that Lenin's death probably would produce no general disquiet in Russia, but nevertheless would have an important political effect. So long as he was alive, although he was not actively participating in the government, he was at least its titular head and his death now opens the position to other leaders.
Laws of his death came unexpectedly at this time to the great majority, as the most recent reports had been that he was considerably improved in health.
While there has been continuous anxiety for his condition since he was stricken in June, 1922, public attention has been directed more to the differences among the communist party leaders and particularly to the status of Leon Trotsky, who, it was recently announced, was in poor health and had gone away for a rest. Little has been heard of public soviet official quarters lately of Lenin's condition, but that little seemed to be of a hopeful nature, and it was not until late last week that the associates of his death were predicting that he would soon be able to advise with the council of ministers.

URGES ACTIVITY TO HELP DEFECTIVES

Rotary Told Wisconsin Has No Constructive Program of Aid.

Without a constructive program dealing with social incapables, and responsibility for a program of this character rests on the state board of control, Secretary A. J. Williams, Madison, before the Rotary club here Tuesday noon. Mr. Williams is executive secretary of the Wisconsin Conference of Social Workers.

The burden of caring for men and women unable to care for themselves is steadily increasing, though science places at the disposal of society a number of more effective techniques for the lessening of this burden," declared Mr. Williams. The forces making for the increase of dependent and defective people are producing increased numbers, while the forces possessing powers to reduce this number remain unused.

Burden Growing.
Following are facts cited by the speaker to show the extent of the burden of caring for incapables in Wisconsin:

"The increase in the number of persons admitted to state institutions for the care of mental incapables has increased 60 per cent in 30 years, while the population has increased but 25 per cent. State hospitals make up 45 per cent of the inmates in the state prison at Waupun. A survey made in Waupun by an accredited psychologist found that there were 59 out of every 100 who were sub-normal or mentally defective; at the Green Bay reformatory, 45 out of every 100 were sub-normal or mentally defective; at the Wisconsin State School for Boys at Waushara, 37 out of every 100; at the Industrial School for Girls, 50 out of every 100; in the county jails throughout the state, 43 out of every 100 who were feeble-minded, epileptic or had deterioration of the mind through deterioration of the brain.

Other States Cited.

"The failure of Wisconsin to develop a constructive program would be a sad and deplorable," said the speaker, "had not other states demonstrated that preventive work pays results." The New York state establishment colonies for feeble-minded was cited, as was also the Indiana system for administration of outdoor poor relief, in which the cost of the latter has been reduced from $23,000 to $225,000. Continuing, Mr. Williams said in part:

However, in Wisconsin we are spending still in 1923, the state expended $12,253,367.35, while the largest sum ever appropriated by the legislature to prevent individuals from becoming social incapables was $1,000,000. We are making little or no use of the tested and proved methods of psychiatry or social medicine or of social psychology. We are making little or no use of the tested and proved methods of psychiatry or social medicine or of social psychology. We are making little or no use of the tested and proved methods of psychiatry or social medicine or of social psychology.

Governor Vetted Measures.
Mr. Williams outlined in detail the recommendations made by the Wisconsin mental deficiency survey, but which he said had been ignored by the board of control, while bills carrying out the recommendations for special classes for sub-normal children were defeated by governor's veto. The state law providing for the organization of a children's division to safeguard the interest of children is not now being carried out, said the speaker, and continued:

"As must be recognized, the child stands at the very gateway of this tremendous problem of social incapables, and whoever hopes to effectively deal with this problem must deal with the child. Therefore, it is of cardinal importance that there should be established a thorough-going program, especially constituted to deal with children. Such a program should aid juvenile courts by putting at their disposal every type and amount of information that could in any way assist the court with all types of children. It should assist in the organization of county units and county welfare boards. It should assist and supervise all public and private child-placing agencies in the state; it should set minimum standards for the commitment and placing out of children; it should enlist the support of all citizens in behalf of dependent and neglected children; it should organize the resources of the state that would act as agents for the prevention of neglect, and the securing of right opportunities for religious life; so each child might secure that development which would form the finest and highest traits of its individual character."

Advisory State Board.
Mr. Williams charged the state board of control with flagrant neglect in competency and criminal neglect in caring for and neglecting children in Wisconsin. He said the legislature at its last session appropriated $30,000 a year for treatment of crippled children and that there were 1,000 in Madison hospitals but only 26 of these pitiful unfortunates.

The speaker was introduced by Dean James Ryan.

The club agreed to have its Ladies' night program at the school for the blind, Feb. 6.

The boys' work committee and directors will meet at 8 p. m. Friday, at the Grand hotel, for a special conference.

PASTOR'S FACING TRIAL BY CHURCH

Question Schooff's Right to Preach in Other Lutheran Churches.

A meeting of the congregation of St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran church has been called for 2 p. m. Sunday to consider the question of the membership of the Rev. D. H. Schooff, who has been in the church for 44 years. The controversy which has resulted in the calling of the meeting arose over Mr. Schooff acting as supply pastor of other churches in the city not a part of the Missouri synod of which the St. Paul's church is a member.

The Rev. D. H. Schooff is a native of Janesville and is widely known. Mr. and Mrs. Schooff were connected with the school for the blind for many years. He left his work at the school in 1902 to become pastor of the St. Paul's church and not his right to act as a minister in the synod.

The Rev. D. H. Schooff is a native of Janesville and is widely known. Mr. and Mrs. Schooff were connected with the school for the blind for many years. He left his work at the school in 1902 to become pastor of the St. Paul's church and not his right to act as a minister in the synod.

Both pastors are remaining silent on the controversy, preferring to await the meeting Sunday. The question involves only Mr. Schooff's membership in St. Paul's church and not his right to act as a minister in the synod.

Mr. Treu contends that the rule of the synod is that a minister may only take a charge which is a part of the "United Church of Christ" organization. It is understood that Mr. Schooff feels that as a pastor he is duty bound to serve when called.

Salvi, Celebrated Harpist, Delights in Club Concert

Alberto Salvi, celebrated harpist, added another triumph to his long list of successes in his appearance Monday night at the high school auditorium, where he presented the second number of the 1923-24 concert season of the Apollo club.

Presenting the entire recital unaccompanied, a singular feat which added novelty and increased interest, Mr. Salvi's amazing accomplishments won unanimous popularity with his audience, which gave prolonged applause at the conclusion of each part of the program and was only appeased when the young artist played two encores.

A program of wide variety offered the 700 hearers an opportunity to appreciate the unlimited ability of Mr. Salvi. His artistry in drawing from the strings music which presented him as a veritable one-man orchestra was extraordinary. Effects at times combined a French horn, a choir of woodwinds, the pizzicato of the string section of an orchestra, a mandolin, tremolo, guitar, and a variety of other instruments.

The program follows: "Allergo," Zazul; "An Printemps," Gode-Salvi; "Dance Espagnole," Gode-Salvi; "Prelude Impromptu," Chopin; "Norwegian Ballade," Posenitz; "Prelude Brillante," Alvar; "Danse des Sylphes," Posen; "Valse de Concert," Salvi; "Prelude," Posenitz; "Italian Serenade," Salvi; "The Music Box," Posenitz; and "Tarentelle," Aptommas-Salvi.

Whose Millions Are These?

Millions of dollars are being spent in propaganda for the Bok peace award referendum. The request for votes is especially for those who are in favor of the league of nations. It will be noted that the newspapers carrying the ballot are almost without exception, pro-league. American Legion posts are receiving ballots with the information that whatever it may cost to secure them, or send out to other posts will be paid for by the American Peace Award committee. There are thousands of letters going to the newspapers, to members of Kiwanis, Rotary, Lions and other clubs, to every kind and sort of an organization, to church lists and ministers, that a vote may be had from the congregation after making the appeal; to thousands of individual citizens as well, and through corporations for their employees. There are numerous pieces of printed matter, return envelopes and ballots in each place of mail. No such campaign has ever been known in this country. No such mail propaganda was ever attempted because no result could have warranted the expenditure.

Who is paying for it? Mr. Bok says he is paying for the award expenses, and he cannot stop other civic organizations from joining.

The reason is plain. Someone not entirely moved by altruistic motives is anxious to get the United States enrolled in the European mess by joining the league. And on the eve of a political campaign it is seen that some such action is necessary to impress upon either the republican or the democratic party the great need of carrying on a campaign for the league of nations. For America to become a member of this impotent league is a diplomatic and international miscegenation which is utterly inexcusable.

The Bok business has been a means only to bring attention to the league of nations. After the Italian-Greek imbroglio, when the league suddenly collapsed in the face of the Italian threat, and passed the responsibility to the Council of Ambassadors, it was found by the internationalists and the theoretical advocates of a superstate, that the league itself was as dead as Julius Caesar. Bok, a millionaire, and a pro-league, made his prize offer. At that time the New York World, always an internationalist newspaper and a league advocate, said in its headlines, "Bok to give prize of $100,000 for a formula by which U. S. enters league." To make this sure the jury was packed with six league advocates. Five of the members were connected with the "League of Nations Non-Partisan Association," and the "Woman's Pro-League Council." This packed jury was made in this manner, after it was announced that "the jury of awards would be selected to represent every shade of opinion."

When the policy committee, which framed the plan for the vote and the referendum, was announced, ten of the twelve members were league of nations advocates living in New York state, most of them in the city of New York, and the other two were also partisans of the league. No one believes that they "represent every shade of opinion." Brand Whitlock of the jury was over in Europe, did not see or read any of the plans reported, was the only person who was not definitely known to be a league partisan, a man who had refused to act as league chairman in the Memel examination, and to whom a digest of a few of the plans were sent by cable. This packed policy committee delegated a staff of women to sort out the plans. The award committee did not read them after the policy committee's clerks had discarded the ones not "available." One might well ask by what rule were plans discarded. The award committee worked for a few days only. What time they spent on the choice of a plan may be well judged by the few days spent in New York by William Allen White, one of the award committee. He admits that he read few of the plans.

What sinister influences are behind all this? Mr. Bok in his original statement says that "The idea may be something entirely new or it may take the form of modifications of the covenant of the league of nations." He was a good guesser for it took the form of the modification of the league. Anything else had no chance. And when one figures the cost of the propaganda, the enormous force required to mail these several million letters, the office rent, the postage and the cost of printing, a political campaign in Wisconsin would look like a bet by a tin horn gambler in comparison.

Who is paying for this drive to make the United States of America a part of the chaos of Europe and a partner in every conceivable sort of trouble on the continent, or in the world? Every wind that blows from across the Atlantic, every traveler who returns, every visitor to America from abroad sings the same refrain, tell the same story of hate of America. What then does Europe want of the United States? Her power and her money. Once in the league she would feel that she was entitled to both.

Whose money is paying for this international "drive"? Surely not that of the industrial groups or of the agricultural population of the nation. Not Mr. Bok's alone, though he is a large contributor by his own admission.

"Watchful waiting" is no part of the Coolidge plan of administration.

A baby gets a look in its bag. The mother and a nurse rush across the continent to the

HUNTING GERMAN ASSETS

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

Washington.—American government officials and bankers are not optimistic over the chances of success of the new commission which have been appointed to solve the German reparations tangle. While General Charles G. Dawes and Owen D. Young, American commissioners, are regarded as entirely competent, there is a general feeling that the situation in itself holds all the elements of defeat of the plan. This applies particularly to the effort to find out how much German capital fled out of Germany to escape confiscation and what has become of it.

Two commissions were provided by the new plan of the reparations commission. The first commission has to do with the primary questions of German responsibility and it is in connection with this work that the American participants will have the chief concern. However, a second commission has been provided to seek out the fugitive German assets to the end that they may be assessed and, so far as possible, caused to pay a share of the reparations charge against the German people. This is the difficult job.

Since the end of the war brought conditions of extraordinary chaos in Europe, especially in Germany, rich men have become past masters in the game of concealing their assets. The first cause for taking this step was the German capital levy, a measure of taxation which was early undertaken in an attempt to put the new German republic on its feet. A capital levy means that the government goes forth and takes a given percentage of the capital owned by every citizen or subject. The levy was on a basis of 10 per cent. It would mean that if a man was worth $100,000, the sum of $10,000 would be required of him. If he was worth $1,000,000, the sum of $100,000 would be taken from him.

When the German capital levy was authorized, it was estimated that $250,000,000 would be raised by it. The rich men of the country had sufficient warning and when the tax collectors came around they got only about $5,000,000, making the attempt a failure.

The same general experience was had in Switzerland when a capital levy was tried not long after the war. Most discussion of the proposal resulted in such heated flight of capital assets that the government called a halt and the levy never was authorized.

This experience has taught Germans as well as citizens of many countries all sorts of new tricks about how to conceal or expatriate assets. Lawyers have made a special study of thinking up ways to get wealth out of the way of the tax collector.

The advance of this art of leading timid wealth across borders to places of greater safety is perhaps the chief cause for the anxiety of the commission to hunt for German assets. And the fact that the rich men and their lawyers have become so proficient in their end of the game of hide and seek is what prompts such men as Secretary of the Treasury Mellon to doubt the success of the new investigating commission.

The case is especially perplexing in a country like Germany. For more than half a century Germans have been going out to other countries like the United States and have been settling and entering business, many becoming very wealthy. Germans almost invariably keep in touch with their relatives in the Fatherland. Suppose a rich German fears that his own government, the reparations commission or some other agency is going to try to make an inroad on some of his wealth. He makes transfers to friends or relatives in the United States, in Spain, Switzerland or some other country. When the tax collector comes around, he can say he has practically nothing. Sometimes nothing more is done than to deposit his money in a foreign bank or to send his securities to a foreign bank where a safe deposit box is rented.

American officials, including the president of the United States, have said that, for purposes of the investigation now being made it will not be practicable for our government to take any part. If it were, the government could be of material assistance in finding the German assets which have come to this country. For instance the controller of the currency could order all the banks under his jurisdiction to report the names of German depositors. Such an action at most certainly would provoke lawsuits because it is the long-established custom of banks not to disclose the identity of customers. The law recognized this confidential relation to some extent.

Further, the commission of internal revenue might go over the tax returns and find out what income was being received from American investments by Germans. This would have to be authorized by act of congress because as the law now stands, income tax returns, even including those of non-resident aliens, are absolutely confidential and it is a crime for any government official to make known to anyone the names of the taxpayers and the amounts of taxes paid. It is likely that congress would repeal this provision of law for the benefit of the reparations commission.

The situation which exists here is duplicated in many other countries and for these reasons government officials and financiers in this country doubt whether anybody will be smart enough to track down very much of the German wealth which has fled beyond the borders.

The most recent trick for the concealment of assets which has come to the notice of the authorities is one practiced in Berlin. Certain rich, anti-reparations commission, have called in notaries public. Other notaries have then functionaries make careful notations of all the stocks and bonds, by descriptions and serial numbers. Then, in the presence of the notaries, the actual stocks and bonds have been thrown into the fire and destroyed. The lists then are sent to some other country, into safe hands. When the proper time comes, the owners of the securities will be able to prove by the sworn and sealed statements of the notaries that their actual bonds and stock certificates have been destroyed by fire and, accordingly, new ones will be issued.

To be sure, the man who owns land or buildings cannot send such property out of the country. But he can do this. He can find some business associate, some cousin or friend in the United States, in Spain, or somewhere else who is willing to help him out. He will execute a mortgage on his real estate, borrowing the money in the foreign country, and he will have the money invested for his benefit there.

Then when the tax collector or commission inquisitor comes along to take a percentage of his wealth, he can say, "You can't take this real estate, I don't own it. It is really the property of so and so in Cincinnati, U. S. A. because he holds a mortgage on it." If he is asked where the mortgage money is he can say that he has spent it, or if he is willing to offend the tax gatherer, he can tell him frankly that it is invested far away out of the reach of Europeans.

great surgeon who can operate. The world at once gets interested. Teapot Dome and Mellon's tax plan are for the moment forgotten. For a few days we are all human, fathers and mothers, sisters and brothers—a great family.

Whenever there is a surplus of anything in the United States some one promptly starts an "Eat More" campaign. Germany is out of luck because no one has found a way of preparing the mark for food.

ENVY.

"Envy," said my father, "is a waste of time, my boy. If the other chap has something which you're eager to enjoy. If he's cleverer or wiser, if his weekly pay is more, or his roses somewhat finer than the ones above. Don't envy him his glory—there's a better thing to do: Be as good a man as he is, and those joys will come to you."

"If you'd like to be a scholar, there are books on every shelf; Sit up nights, my boy, and read them and get knowledge for yourself. If it's skill that you are craving, there's a sure way to get it. You can be your neighbor's equal if you'll practice every day. But don't envy anybody; you'll regret it if you do. For you'll find the time you've wasted would have made a man of you."

"If it's money you are after, you can earn it if you will. If you'll endeavor to practice you'll acquire the touch of skill; If you like your neighbor's roses and they're better than your own, You can have them if you'll study just how. But don't waste your time on envy—that's the method of the shirk; You can gain the joy you're craving if you'll only do the work."

WHO'S WHO TODAY

NORMAN H. DAVIS, under-secretary in the Wilson administration, has accepted an invitation from the league of nations to serve as chairman of a new commission which will endeavor to solve an international problem growing out of the territory of Memel. The solution of this problem is regarded by European statesmen as essential to the peace and economic progress of the Baltic states.

Norman H. Davis was asked, as a private citizen only, to accept the chairmanship of the Memel board, he has served the government officially on many important commissions. At the beginning of the World war, Davis was appointed financial adviser to secretary of the treasury, in charge of loans to allied governments. Later he served as special delegate to Madrid, London and Paris. He was a member of the supreme council of supplies and relief, and financial adviser to President Wilson and the American peace delegates in Paris.

He was a member of the armistice commission and later a member of the supreme economic council. In November, 1919, he was made assistant secretary of the treasury and on June 15, 1920, under secretary of state.

HOW HEARTS FAIL.

By this time the faithful reader will begin to suspect that hearts don't fail unless there is something radically wrong with 'em. That's right. They don't.

When a heart is getting ready to fail the veins always has ample warning. It is something the matter. If in spite of such warnings, he prefers to stick to his old-time remedies, trying this and that for run down constitutions, tired feeling, nervous strain and the like, why his life is in his own hands. Only when the failure does become sufficient to interfere with the following routine work or play or put him in bed, for truth's sake let him refrain from exclaiming that it is so sudden, for heart disease is practically always a matter of slow, insidious, gradual development; the heart failure goes hand in hand with the progress of the disease.

Just what are the warning signals of heart failure? I can't tell you. It is contrary to my hygienic principles to display symptoms. Anyhow, there are no pathognomonic signs of heart failure, though there are many indications of a few conditions which at least make the state of the heart suspicious and warrant a proper physical examination.

1. Consciousness of a falling off in physical efficiency—the frank recognition that you are incapable of as much effort as you were able to put forth without becoming tired and agitated.

2. If you find that you become easily fatigued when you try to read or write or otherwise make a mental effort for a short time.

3. An unusual feeling of being "done up" after some moderate physical or mental effort which you did not mind a year ago.

4. A trouble some short windedness or puffing when you walk up grade or climb the stairs than you used to experience when you were well.

5. Sensations of fluttering, throbbing, or momentary pauses (skipping beats) in the region of the heart. The latter sensation is usually in reality an extra beat rather violent in character.

6. Restless sleep or sleep disturbed too much by dreams.

Contributions to the United States, any state, territory or political subdivision thereof—city, town, county, or hamlet—or to the District of Columbia for religious, educational, charitable or scientific purposes are deductible from gross income to an extent not in excess of 15 percent of the taxpayer's net income, computed without the benefit of this deduction.

The value of real estate presented to a city to be maintained perpetually as a public park is an allowable deduction. Subscribers by citizens to a fund raised for the purpose of inducing an industrial plant to locate in their city would not be allowable deductions.

Deductions, limited as above, are also allowable for contributions to corporations, community chests, funds or foundations organized and operated exclusively for religious, charitable, scientific, literary or educational purposes, including posts of the American Legion, or the women's auxiliary units thereof, or for the promotion of charity to children or animals, no part of the net earnings of which inures to the benefit of any private stockholder or individual, and which are exempt from federal taxation.

Any church constituting a religious corporation or organization for the purpose of this deduction, donations for the purpose of religious, church building, new parsonage, and similar gifts paid to churches are deductible.

Contributions for contributions to political campaigns are not allowable. Amount spent for lobbying purposes, the promotion or defeat of legislation and for propaganda other than trade advertising, are not deductible.

Deductions may not be made for the gift of an individual for the relief of poverty or distress, but if made to an organization of the kind described above, the deduction is allowed, though the organization distributed its fund among such beneficiaries. The deductible contributions have been construed to mean money or property. The value of service to the organization is not allowed as a deduction.

"Now what business is it of yours, Tom, where the boy has a job?" "I'm asking," I want to know. "I'm telling you, Bill, your actions have been a bit queer lately, and I'm warning you not to get mixed up with you mighty close and affectionate. What store, Conley?" "Tell him Ragsdale's and be done with it," Dore inserted wearily. "Sawyer turned on Dore. 'You keep out of this Bill. You've got too much to say altogether.' 'It's a free country, and this is no courtroom.'"

"It was a courtroom before we got through. Lowsie, today's Monday. I want you and Conley in my office at Ragsdale's on Wednesday afternoon at three o'clock. The sheriff added, lifted his reins and moved off down the road. "That sheriff is too suspicious for any human use," Dore exclaimed when they were proceeding on their way.

"Has to be, in his business." "I believe he thinks that some, however mixed up in—"

"I believe he does," he asserted helpfully. "She was silent. He could see that she was thinking something out. 'Look here,' she said after a space. 'If he thinks you're mixed up in this, why doesn't he arrest you instead of telling you to come to his office. Is he giving you a chance to escape?'

"He shook his head. 'No, isn't giving me any chance to escape. He's hoping I'll try it.' " 'For what?' " 'Because he hasn't anything to go on except suspicion,' he explained patiently. 'If I don't show up at his office, it will be evidence of guilt—give him something to go on—something to arrest me for. It's the old notion of giving a thief enough rope to hang himself with.' "Then you actually intend coming to his office day after tomorrow?"

"He nodded. 'Why not?' " 'But the saddle and bridle. Your man will identify them. That's sure.' "Not Tom."

"Why won't he? Have you seen him?"

"No, I haven't seen him and I don't intend to. Whenever the sheriff sent after Tom will have his orders to watch for me trying to talk to Tom. Oh, the sheriff has thought things out pretty well."

"But—don't I understand?" "Better not try. What you don't know won't hurt you."

"You would tell her what he had in mind despite all she would do and say. She became miffed. 'You needn't think I'm worried on your account,' she told him. 'That sheriff will find out I'm a woman. His eyes, they looked right through me. Suppose he holds me and sends me back to the Hawkins outfit?'

"How can he? You're a girl?" "That's just it. I'm not. I lied to

TAKE SALTS IF STOMACH ISN'T ACTING RIGHT

Says Indigestion Results from an Excess of Hydrochloric Acid.

Undigested food delayed in the stomach decays, or rather ferments, the same as food left in the open air, says a noted authority. He also tells us that indigestion is caused by hyperacidity meaning there is an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach which prevents complete digestion and starts food fermentation. Thus everything eaten sours in the stomach much like garbage sours in a can, forming acid fumes and gases which inflame the stomach like a toy balloon. Then comes a heavy lumpiness in the chest; we belch up gas; we eructate sour food or have heartburn, flatulence, water-brash or nausea.

He tells us to lay aside all digestive aids and instead get from any pharmacy four ounces of Jad Salts and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and at night. It is effective, and furthermore, to continue this for a week. While relief often follows the first dose, it is important to help neutralize the acidity, remove the gas-making mucus, soothe the liver, stimulate the kidneys and thus promote a free flow of pure digestive juices.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and sodium phosphate. This harmless salt is used for many stomach disorders with excellent results. —Advertisement.

Dinner Stories

On the occasion of a most interesting family event, Mr. Johnson, who desired a son, paced the drawing room in a state of agitation, until at last the doctor appeared in the doorway. "Tr-tr-tr," the physician began stammering.

YOUR BABY AND MINE

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Mrs. Eldred is happy to advise all mothers about the care of their children of any age, or on any subject which does not belong in the field of the doctor.

CONVULSIONS

All children are not subject to convulsions, but the child who is, is a continual source of terror to his mother. Children of nervous temperament are more prone to have spasms from slight causes, but nervous diseases are often ushered in by spasms, and these are harder to control than the spasms that are due to an overloaded digestive tract and which will be relieved promptly when that is relieved.

Spasms are due to high fever induced by any number of causes, and the spasms must be overcome by measures which lower the temperature and thus relieve the overworked lungs.

When the child goes into a spasm undress him and put him in a tub of hot water into which the mother has plunged her bare arm up to the elbow. It should feel hot, but not burn.

at all, as the child's tender skin is easily burned in the excitement of the moment. The tub should be held enough water so that the child is well covered. Keep him in the tub until the convulsions cease, lift him out, wrap him in a blanket to induce perspiration and put a cold wet towel on his forehead.

The same method may be used if the tub bath is impossible, by wrapping the child in hot wet towels and then in a blanket, so that he will be steamed. Hot water bottles may be put around the blanket. When the child awakes, his temperature will come down and the convulsions will stop. He should be given a dose of castor oil (one of the times when this is the right phrase) or calomel.

His bowels should be relieved immediately by a warm enema. In most cases this will be sufficient to stop the convulsion, and a careful diet for a few days will keep the child quiet until ward off another attack. The doctor should be notified so that in case of serious illness he will be advised of the child's condition, and able to advise.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl 16. I met a fellow of 19 and we went together for three months. Then we quarreled and broke up for two weeks. After that he made up and we went together rather steady for two more months. He was rather jealous of me.

One night I went with another fellow and he thought that was awful. He said we would have to break up and so now we have not gone together for five months. I have always said I was a respectable girl. Now he wants to make up with me for the third time. I really love him. I have gone with many other fellows, but don't think any are like him. My folks think he is all right. Do you think it would be all right for me to go back with him or not? Do you think he really loves me?

Would there be any harm if I did not go back with him and we were just friends? BRIGHT EYES.

The young man does not really love you or he would not quarrel and stop going with you so easily. Since you care for him, I would advise you to let him come back, but make it thoroughly understood when he comes back that you have no intention of going with him exclusively and insist on having other friends as well. There is no reason why you should not be friends, even if you do not go together.

PROPER

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Is it proper for a young girl to ride in the front seat between two boys if the entire back seat is empty? THANK YOU.

Yes. Such a thing is often done so that one person will not have to ride alone.

Pimples, blackheads and enlarged pores must be treated to internal disorders. Imperfect elimination is usually responsible for all such trouble. The skin becomes overworked in its effort to open the system cleared. It shows first in the oily skin, which indicates that the pores are being distended from the excessive amount of secretion. Blackheads follow quickly as they are none other than impurities of this oily secretion combined with soil and clogging the pores. Pimples are the result of the effort of the system to clear itself.

There would be very little of such trouble if people would live on a balanced diet, and eat only the amount of food that their system requires. You may not realize that poor elimination is causing the trouble, but it will not hurt to give it a test. Try again for a time, taking your regular breakfast cereal or eat a breakfast cereal containing bran, if it does not irritate the stomach. Agar agar will not irritate as it becomes a gelatinous mass, not even requiring digestion.

While reforming the diet and clearing the system, try the following for the skin: To a pound of oatmeal add a quarter of a teaspoonful of sulphur and a heaping tablespoonful of shaved castile, or any other kind of good quality. Make a number of small cheesecloth bags and put a teaspoonful of the mixture in each to be used in place of soap when washing the face. Do this several times a day, always using warm water followed by a cold rinse in which a drop or two of benzoin has been added to about one quart of water.

Troubled W. L. H. M. S. G. L. Food, Miss A. C. M. S. S. B. M. G. M. H. An oily scalp usually accompanies an oily skin and will be improved by following the advice given above for clearing the system. A tonic that has an alcoholic basis should be used for time, and cold water as the last rinse after shampooing. A dry scalp, or one with a tendency to dandruff, should have hot oil massaged into it a few hours before the regular shampoo. The night before is best.

The pilocarpine tonic, so often recommended in the "Chats," and for which I am kind of good authority, will be found of benefit in any case of abnormal scalp condition; and both a dry and a scaly or oily scalp will come in this class.

A daily massage of the scalp will also do much in restoring it to health no matter what is wrong. This is very simple as it only means to move the muscles of the scalp with the finger tips until one loosens them from the bones of the head. After this treatment there should be such an improvement in the circulation that you feel the blood tingling. Pulling the hair by grasping it in handfuls near the scalp will also increase circulation and will remove waste matter which should come out to make way for new ones. If your hair is thin, if it is falling out, or if your scalp has any of the troubles above mentioned, by following the suggestions given here you cannot fail to correct the trouble and grow a healthy head of hair, provided your general health is good. One's health always affects the hair.

"Swinging the Pity" in China. The recent health drive and cleanliness campaign in China has resulted in enough concrete evidence of interest on the part of the population to encourage further efforts. Several of the schools organized health and "kill the fly" campaigns. It is becoming quite common to see fruit stands and food shops using food screens to keep off the flies, and it is noticeable that the city authorities are taking greater care in removing filth. The Dragon Boat Festival held in Hangchow was used as the occasion for demonstration of health and sanitation measures.

Heart and Home Problems

By ELIZABETH THOMPSON.

Letters May Be Addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in Care of the Gazette.

HUSBAND BEATS HER

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a married lady, 20 years old. I have a baby 16 months old. I love my baby very much, but my husband does not make my home happy. He curses me and beats me. I always get the blame for everything that goes wrong. He often goes away and gambles and doesn't come back all night. He does not treat my mother with respect and doesn't even speak to her.

There is another man two years my senior who is liked by every one. He tells me that he loves me and would leave his wife and child to be with me. I am so much happier. My mother and father think an awful lot of him because he has always been so good to them. I think more of him than my husband because my husband is so mean to me that I am afraid of him.

I cannot go on living like this because I am so unhappy. My husband never wants to take me any place and gets angry when I go with my friends.

Please advise me what to do. TROUBLED.

From what you say, you have every reason to leave your husband and obtain a divorce. No self-respecting woman is willing to put up with a man who beats her. I think, however, that it is wrong for you to remain with your husband and encourage another man in his love for you. Until you are divorced you owe it to yourself and your child to be true to your husband. It seems to me there must be something wrong in the other man's code of honor or he would not talk of love to you.

A LOVERS' QUARREL

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl 16. I met a fellow of 19 and we went together for three months. Then we quarreled and broke up for two weeks. After that he made up and we went together rather steady for two more months. He was rather jealous of me.
